Activity Information:

Objectives	The program aimed to orient newly admitted students to the institution's vision, mission, and culture. It provided guidance for smooth transition into academic life while promoting interaction, confidence building, and holistic development.
Target Audience	F. Tech and Direct Second Year Students
Methodology	The program was conducted through expert lectures, interactive sessions, motivational talks, cultural activities, and ice-breaking exercises. Faculty mentors and resource persons guided the students to ensure active participation and smooth integration into campus life.
Outcomes	Developed a sense of belongingness and discipline among students. Encouraged team spirit and collaboration through group activities. Enhanced communication and soft skills via interactive sessions. Increased awareness about career opportunities and institutional facilities. Built positive attitude and motivation towards academic journey.

SWOT Analysis of the Event:

Strength	Weakness	Opportunity	Threats
Effective orientation for new students. Encouraged interaction between students and faculty. Motivational and confidence-building sessions.	Limited time for individual attention. Participation may vary among students.	Scope to include more career guidance sessions. Chance to introduce mentorship and peer-support programs.	Scheduling conflicts with academic timetable. Possible low engagement if sessions are too long or repetitive.
